Manx Hospitality.

To their credit be it said the Manx people are so courteous that, no matter at what time of the day or night a stranger might arrive, he is welcomed with open arms. A tale is told that one morning a dance was in progress on the pier at Douglas when a shipwrecked sailor, who had been drifting about on a spar, and had very fortunately "landed" on the girders below, crawled up the steps.

A "master of ceremonies" came forward, smiling, bowed and said:

"Exceedingly pleased to see you, sir. Can I find you a partner?"

almost a half dozen peasants from Arcadia and princes and pages galore.

Mrs. Clover, as happy in giving pleasure as any child of them all, received the children and their elders who were invited to look on the pretty scene, in a light striped silk, with artistic effects in pink velvet. Little Miss Dora, the elder of the two tiny daughters of the house, was uniformed as a year admiral of the United States navy, and if Congress could have had a glimpse of that miniature Dewey her rank would have been raised at once. A cocked hat, bound with gold, capped her baby blonde hair, of tow and the regulation straps and buttons, and a sword in its scabbard dangled at the side of her skirt, which was of creamy satin. Little Beatrice Clover, in navy blue flannel and white head, was the tiniest midshipmate inside of history or out.

Among the many beautiful, picturesque and quaint little figures present was Master John Russell Young, Jr., who was groomed as a cardinal in scarlet cassock and beretta and surplice of white lace. The two tiny daughters of the Attorney General and Mrs. G. W. G. were, respectively, as a lady of the sixteenth century and the Queen of Holland, Master Driggs, son of Commander and Mrs. Driggs, as a prince of the court, also added a dash of ecclesiastical gaiety to the gay colors of the hour, while his little sister wore the very simple gown of a trained nurse. One of the most picturesque figures present was the daughter of Madame Meron, who looked in her quaint gown of buttercup satin and poke bonnet, with its stately black plumes as if she had stepped out of the thirteenth century. Mrs. Clover's beautiful home. There was a Turk so tiny as to be almost really and truly unspeakable, but the sensation of the evening was caused by the appearance of Thomas Hinckley, who appeared as an Indian chief, with an unpronounceable name. Gladys Hinckley made a distractingly pretty figure, and small Robert was a gay little French lord in military satin and a peaked cap with bells.

Little Miss Whitney made a picturesque Orlando, Carrie Munn was a fascinating Spanish girl, and John Sherman, a young man, who was a wee bit of a toddler at last year's party, was on hand last night in the blue flames of a marine. He made a jolly, giggling little figure, and among those who watched his baby assumption of manhoodness no one was more amused nor so proud as his venerable uncle, former Secretary John Sherman, who, with a number of other guests, enjoyed the party as much almost as the children themselves.

A menagerie wagon loaded with candy animals stood in the center of the room, and the table in the dining room, and the ice was served in molds of flowers and fruits. Each child received, special gifts of toys and bonbons, which were fished from a magic well in one of the side parlors. The well bucket, filled with flowers, and the peened roof covered with white tulle and sprayed with violets, made a pretty picture and delighted the children all around. Near the well, in a corner where she could enjoy the pretty shifting scene, sat Madame W., the whimsical little old lady, the nee minister, who was as picturesque and gorgeous in her native costume as any guest present. Her satin gown was of mazarin blue, embroidered with gold. A big diamond flashed in her coal black hair, and her small feet were encased in satin of vivid red. Her young son was among the merry dancers.

The Vice President and Mrs. Hobart were present the greater part of the evening, the latter wearing a beautiful toilet of silver gray satin embroidered in cut steel. The Attorney General and Mrs. Griggs were also among the onlookers, together with Mrs. John W. Foster and Dr. and Mrs. Mackay-Smith.

Mrs. Rush Wallace, 177 Massachusetts Avenue, entertained at a 5 o'clock tea yesterday afternoon.

The ladies of the board of managers of the Garfield Hospital, who were entertained in their admiration for Mrs. D. B. Russell, who has added so many dollars to their treasury and done it in such a graceful manner, were filling his recent engagement here. Mrs. Russell was the honored guest of the ladies of the board at a very beautifully appointed tea given at the residence of Mrs. John A. Logan, at which were present a prominent gathering of official dignitaries and a large contingent from the social world.

Mrs. Francis Colton entertained at a luncheon yesterday in compliment to Miss Thornton, who is here for the winter as the guest of her grandmother, Mrs. D. B. Colton. The guests included Miss M. McKenna and Miss McKenna, Mrs. M. McKenna, Miss Alice Rochester, Miss Elsie Cassel, Miss Congreve, Miss Allen, Miss Hazlett, Miss Poor, Miss Carter, Miss McCoombs, Miss Gilman, Miss Gallaudet, Miss Brown and Miss Colton.

Dolly Madison Chapter, D. A. R., met last Tuesday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Barnard, Jr. The Goode talked interestingly of the early days of Virginia and was succeeded by Mr. Barnard, who made Lafayette the subject of his remarks. Miss Logan, a historian of the chapter, read a sketch descriptive of the stirring Revolutionary Summer of 1776 and at the close of the literary program refreshments were served by the hostess.

Mrs. J. Ellen Foster and Miss Pierce gave a luncheon at the Portner yesterday to meet Mrs. L. B. Barnard, of Michigan. The guests were Mrs. Varick Boswell, of New York; Mrs. August Lynch, Mrs. Mary S. Lockwood, Mrs. Charles W. Pierce, of Boston, and Mrs. J. A. T. Hull, of Iowa.

Miss Bernice Austin, Stockbridge and Mr. G. R. Anderson, assistant secretary of the Southern Railroad, were married last Wednesday evening at St. Andrew's church, Rev. Dr. Perry officiating. The bride, attended by her father, Judge Stockbridge, entered the church gown in white silk under chignon, and carrying a bouquet of lilies of the valley and bride roses arranged in a shower bouquet. Her veil was wreathed with orange blossoms. Miss Bernice Stockbridge, the maid of honor, wore yellow organdy and carried American Beauty roses. The ushers were Messrs. C. F. Brooks, G. R. Acton, Charles MacRoberts, R. F. Morris, W. Mason and Mr. Mason. Mr. George S. Derrick was best man. The surprised chorists of the church met the bride party at the door and preceded them, chanting, to the chancel. A reception to the bride party followed, after which Mr. and Mrs. Anderson left for an extended trip to the South. Upon their return they will reside at 1317 G Street.

The E. T. W. Club, originally the Lo Drott Park Historical and Literary Society, held its regular meeting last Monday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Bennett A. Allen, 1901 Fourth Street. Solos by Mr. Bennett, with piano accompaniment; readings by Mrs. Taylor and Mrs. Olinsted, talks by Mrs. Bennett, a recitation by Mrs. Thomas were given. Refreshments were served, after which the club adjourned to meet December 21 at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thomas, 1835 R Street. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Eastling, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fairman, Mr. and Mrs. Allen, Mr. and Mrs. George Denham, Mrs. May, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Logan, Miss Dana May and Mr. and Mrs. Dennett.

Mrs. Charles Dwight Sigbee has cards out for four "at homes," at which she will be assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Kittle. Miss Ethel Sigbee, the artistic young daughter of the house, will be among the season's hosts.

A very pretty wedding was that solemnized last Wednesday evening at St. Elizabeth's church, when Miss Bessie Bell Johnson and Mr. George Smith were united by the Rev. Father McGee. The altar was prettily decorated with cut flowers. The young couple were assisted
